Letter of reference

ARRI is one of the world's leading developers and manufacturers of motion picture equipment. Especially in the field of digital film recording, ARRI offers a cutting edge advantage through application of specific innovative inventions.

The goal of the ARRI Technology Project D/20 is the production of a digital camera that is as similar as possible to a conventional film camera. The prototype first presented on the IBC 2003 was equipped with a fullformat sensor (24x18mm) at a resolution of 6 megapixels as well as a digital viewfinder and rotating shutter. All conventional 35 mm lenses can be used with this camera.

In line with the development of this camera, ARRI cooperated with film academies. In 2005, ARRI supported the film academy movie "Aqua ad Lavandum".

During the production of "Aqua ad Lavandum", Ms. Wagner worked in the film's camera department. Her extensive knowledge and technical expertise were impressive qualifications. However, it was her wide experiences and analyses that proved to be an invaluable asset to our development team.

Ms. Wagner is one of very few HD camera experts and surely will continue to grow and share her experiences with any crew she is associated with and is a great addition to the production process.

We thank Ms. Wagner for her extraordinary cooperation and wish her the god speed.

Best regards,

Clemens Danzer
