Munich, April 2006

To Whom It May Concern,

Band Pro Munich GmbH is a leading company in the world of High Definition movie making. Founded in 2002 by the US-based company Band Pro Film&Digital with more than 20 years of experience in digital movie making, Band Pro Munich's goal is to pave the way for filmmakers using the new High Definition medium as new art of movie making.

We highly appreciate the extraordinary qualification and outstanding knowledge of Ms Christine Wagner in terms of digital image capturing systems and workflows of motion pictures.

In August 2000 we worked with Ms. Wagner being the camera operator of "Rave MacBeth", the first movie ever shot completely digital (24p) and also incorporate digital post production on 24p. Ms. Wagner has been well known in the production scenery while always demonstrated a highly innovative skill set in modern digital image capturing systems based on a fundamental knowledge of traditional movie making.

Therefore in early 2004 we worked together again on a short movie named "Triell". Next to others this project was made to show and qualify a high performance tapeless digital 444 RGB workflow recorded on hard disc drives. DP was Michael Ballhaus, A.S.C., Ms. Wagner joined us as camera assistant. Ms. Wagner worked with Thomson Viper Film Stream Camera (4:4:4 10-Bit-Log) equipped with Zeiss DigiPrime lenses as well as Fujinon E-series lenses.

We would like to express that Ms. Wagner is a highly experienced specialist of whom you find only a few of them worldwide. Her experience, power of comprehension and know how, accumulated in an impressively short amount of time, in combination with her fast, effective and creative film making experience holds her in high regards if it goes to work with HD technology in practice. Also we want to point out that in terms of R&D for new products we appreciate Ms. Wagners advise and consultancy.

At any given time, Ms. Wagner has our highest recommendation and we always enjoy to work with her.

Best regards,

Gerhard Baier
